Lapsing nomination

Valid for three years from the date it is signed.

If your lapsing nomination is valid at the time of your death, the Trustee will follow your nomination, no matter how your circumstances have changed. So if, for example, you separate from your spouse without divorcing – and he/she is your chosen beneficiary – your lapsing nomination remains valid and binds the Trustee.

If in the future you do not have a legal personal representative and your chosen beneficiary is no longer a dependant, your lapsing nomination is invalid.

Your nomination does not take effect until it has been accepted by the Trustee.

Non-lapsing nomination

Valid from the date it is signed unless it is changed, revoked or your personal circumstances change such as; you get married, enter into a de facto or similar relationship (including same-sex relationships), separate on a permanent basis from your spouse or partner or have a child with a person other than your spouse or partner.

If in the future you do not have a legal personal representative and your chosen beneficiary is no longer a dependant, your non-lapsing nomination is invalid.

Your nomination does not take effect until it has been accepted by the Trustee.

Who can you nominate as a beneficiary?

Please read the important information at section 3 to understand who you can validly nominate as your beneficiary.

Accounts this nomination applies to

This nomination will apply to all Living Super accounts that you have but will not override a valid reversionary nomination.

If you don't nominate or you revoke your nomination

If you do not have a valid binding nomination in place, your benefits will be distributed to your estate or, if there is no appointed legal personal representative of your estate, distributed at the Trustee's discretion.

Don't forget!

No matter the nomination type, we recommend reviewing your chosen beneficiaries at regular intervals. An invalid nomination will not be effective. It will not revoke or replace an existing valid nomination.
